

British Journal of PHOTOGRAPHY

Say cheese

The Viewfinder Gallery in Peyton Place off Royal Hill is staging an exhibition called Masked Ball from March 18 to April 5. The work of three photographers will be on show, each featuring portraits of people in a variety of masks.

James Reid's work features people wearing formal clothing and animal heads, Stuart Southwell uses distorted, often disturbing, masks and Laura Hensser takes self-portraits, wearing mundane objects that suggest her memories like the cheese slices in the image shown.

www.viewfinder.org.uk

